

“Dine and Play” Gives Kids More Fun While Parents Relax

CELEBRATION, Fla. – “Dine and Play” aboard Disney Cruise Line provides more time for kids to have fun at youth activities and gives parents a relaxing night cap during their evening meal.

With “Dine and Play,” parents can check their children into evening youth activity programming without leaving the dining room. Offered during the second seating in all of the main dining rooms and open to children ages 3 to 12, “Dine and Play” allows the dining room serving team to facilitate the children’s meals first, while serving the adults at a more leisurely pace.

Upon arrival for second seating dinner, parents simply inform their server that their children would like to participate in “Dine and Play.” Children receive their meals in an expedited fashion and youth activities counselors arrive approximately 45 minutes into dinner to escort children to their respective youth activities groups for an evening of fun and entertainment.

Parents can then enjoy the remainder of their dining experience. Afterwards, they can take a romantic stroll on deck or head to the adults-only nighttime entertainment district for dancing, drinks and entertainment especially for them.
